

Diogo Casa Nova

Hello! My name is Diogo and I come from a beautiful city named Aveiro, in Portugal. I am a researcher at the University of Aveiro where I am doing my PHD on the development of a model to assess how Higher Education teachers are using ICT in their teaching practices. I did a Masters in Managing Information and have several published research related with eLearning and academic portals.

I am currently doing research on the LCD (Laboratory of Digital Contents) and on the LAQE (Laboratory for the Evaluation of Teaching Quality in Higher Education) both laboratories of the Research Centre for Didactics and Technology in Teacher Education.

I run Continuous Professional Development courses for Higher Education teachers since 2008 especially related to collaborative learning and the use of ICT to promote active learning.
